RELEVANT INFORMATION

Grupo Argos' preferred share was included in the MSCI Small Cap Index

- The inclusion strengthens Grupo Argos' visibility among international institutional investors.
- This represents a further milestone in the ACE program, as it contributes to greater share liquidity translating into convergence toward the company's fundamental value.
- Since the announcement of ACE, Grupo Argos' common share has appreciated by 18%, while its preferred share has increased by 14%

Grupo Argos' preferred share was included today in the MSCI Small Cap Index, one of the international benchmarks widely used by institutional investors. This milestone expands the visibility of Grupo Argos' preferred share among local and international investors and strengthens its positioning within the capital markets. Inclusion in international indices may also broaden the potential investor base that follows the company and contribute to greater market depth and liquidity for the share.

The announcement comes just days after the launch of ACE (Argos Convergence Effort), Grupo Argos' roadmap to accelerate value generation, capture, and transfer, while contributing to the convergence of the company's market price toward its fundamental value.

ACE is structured around three pillars: operational excellence, the consolidation of the asset management business, and the acceleration of the share repurchase program. Within this agenda, Grupo Argos will continue working to strengthen the liquidity of its shares, expand its exposure to investors, and execute initiatives that allow the value generated by its businesses to be transferred more directly to shareholders.

"The inclusion of our preferred share in the MSCI Small Cap Index represents an important step forward within the framework of ACE and in Grupo Argos' positioning in international capital markets. Our focus is on execution: continuing to strengthen our businesses, allocating capital with discipline, and creating the conditions for the market to progressively recognize Grupo Argos' fundamental value. We celebrate the inclusion of our preferred share as part of ACE 1.0."

Felipe Aristizábal
CFO of Grupo Argos

The inclusion in the index adds to the progress Grupo Argos has made in corporate simplification, strengthening its capital structure, and improving the liquidity of its shares, following a transformation process that has enabled the company to consolidate its position as an investment manager primarily focused on infrastructure.

Grupo Argos will continue executing the initiatives contemplated under ACE with a clear priority: strengthening profitability, cash generation, and value transfer to shareholders, while deepening its presence and relevance in the capital markets.
